EMS director questions ministry stats

Angelica Blenich

Staff reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the Oct. 12 meeting of the emergency medical services committee.

Emergency services director Pat Kennedy is investigating the number of ambulance calls received in Haliburton County after a recent report, which included data provided by the Ministry of Health, indicated call volume was stable.

"I'm frustrated with this report," Kennedy told members of the EMS committee at their Oct. 12 meeting.

According to the report, which includes statistics from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30 of 2011, call volume seems to be stable compared to previous years.

Meanwhile internal department trends, such as an increase in kilometres travelled compared to previous years and up staffing suggest otherwise.

"Everything has been telling us the numbers are up. I'm really suspicious of the call data," said Kennedy.

Kennedy told committee members to take the report with a grain of salt, as he believes there are some serious flaws with it.

While call volume appears to be stable, costs are in fact up, said Kennedy.

"I need to do more digging," he said.

Dysart Deputy-reeve Bill Davis asked how the department transferred their data to the Ministry of Health.

"It's all done by dispatch," said Kennedy.

To date EMS has received 2,900 calls between the Haliburton and Minden base in 2011, compared to 2,985 received in 2010.

"It appears as though we're quite busy. This year so far we've done 147 CT transfers, roughly 18 to 20 a month,"

Riding's voter turnout above average

More than 56 per cent of voters in Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock went to polls

Jenn Watt
Editor

It may not be anything to cheer about, but this riding brought back a voter turnout significantly higher than the provincial average.

Just more than 56 per cent of Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock eligible voters cast their ballots, according to early estimates by Elections Ontario.

That's seven percentage points higher than the Ontario-wide tally.

Of the 87,272 eligible voters listed by the elections organization, 49,212 showed up at the polls Oct. 6.

Provincewide, 49 per cent of those eligible voted.

In the 2009 byelection, 39.3 per cent of those qualifying to vote came to the polls.

Despite being above average in turnout, this year's numbers are still well below the turnout from the previous two general elections, which garnered 59.2 per cent and 63.2 per cent in 2007 and 2003 respectively, according to Elections Ontario.

Participation way up at hike festival

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

This year's expanded Hike Haliburton Festival, which took place the weekend of Sept. 23 to 25, saw a 70 per cent increase in participation over last year.

A report on the festival's success was presented to members of Haliburton County's economic development committee on Oct. 12.

Comprised of the county's four reeves, the committee was given a summary of this year's festival by economic development director Bob Smith.

"We had a significant increase over 2010 and received lots of positive feedback. One comment in particular was don't change the date, keep the festival in September," said Smith.

Compared to the 2010 festival, which included 15 guided hikes throughout the county, this year's event had a total of 33 guided hikes as well as two evening concerts.

More than 500 hikers participated in the weekend event, said Smith.

This year the county hired Barrie Martin of Yours Outdoors to facilitate the festival. Through private sponsorships $4,295 was raised by 46 local businesses, which was added to the county's budget of $3,700 to run the event.

Donation tins were also circulated at the various hikes, bringing in a total of $1,070.

"I think we were quite aggressive this year, I don't think we want to get much bigger. It may become too hard to manage," said Smith.

"I think a 70 per cent increase is phenomenal," said Minden Hills Reeve and committee chair Barb Reid.

A deficit of $750 was incurred from this year's event, primarily as a result of new signage and guide costs, according to Smith's report.

Looking to next year's event Smith informed the committee he was going to submit an application for a Celebrate Ontario grant before the mid-November deadline.

"We've resurrected this event and they're now starting to fund smaller events," said Smith.

Jobs, health care top Scott's to-do list

Jenn Watt

Editor

With a successful election campaign behind her, PC MPP Laurie Scott is now focusing on an arguably harder task: improving the economic and social health of this riding.

Jobs and health care top the priority list of the MPP who won her spot back in the Oct. 6 election.

It's about "getting the government to get the right programs" for rural Ontario, she said in an interview less than a week after her win.

Pointing to the Liberals' celebrated Home First program, which aims to move patients out of the hospital and into other institutions or home for support, Scott said the results aren't matching up with the goals.

"We want to keep more people in their homes ... you talk to the access centre or any of the providers and [the money] never flowed," she said.

Similarly, tax breaks and hydro rate reductions could go a long way in improving the situation for the people of Haliburton, Scott suggested.

"When you give tax relief ... it does stimulate the local economy more because our economies are smaller," she said.

Small amounts of money can go a long way, she said.

While Scott was hoping her party, led by Tim Hudak, would paint the province blue, she said even with a minority Liberal government they could have an influence.

Minorities have to be more responsive to the needs of other parties than majorities do, and that situation could give both the PCs and the NDP more power than they had before the election.

On a local level, Scott said she could still get results for the riding, despite not being a member of the ruling party.

She points to Lindsay's dialysis unit and funding for the R.D. Lawrence Place in Minden as examples of her finding money for the riding when she last served as MPP from 2003 to 2009.

Former Liberal MPP Rick Johnson is often credited for bringing millions to Haliburton during his short 2½ years and Scott said she appreciates his effort, while noting the circumstances of his tenure.

"I'm glad we got our fair share of the money," she said.

"He did come in an unprecedented time," she said, referring to the recession that saw governments from across the political spectrum spend heavily to stimulate the economy.

Scott hasn't set a schedule for visiting the Highlands, choosing instead to respond to requests as they come.

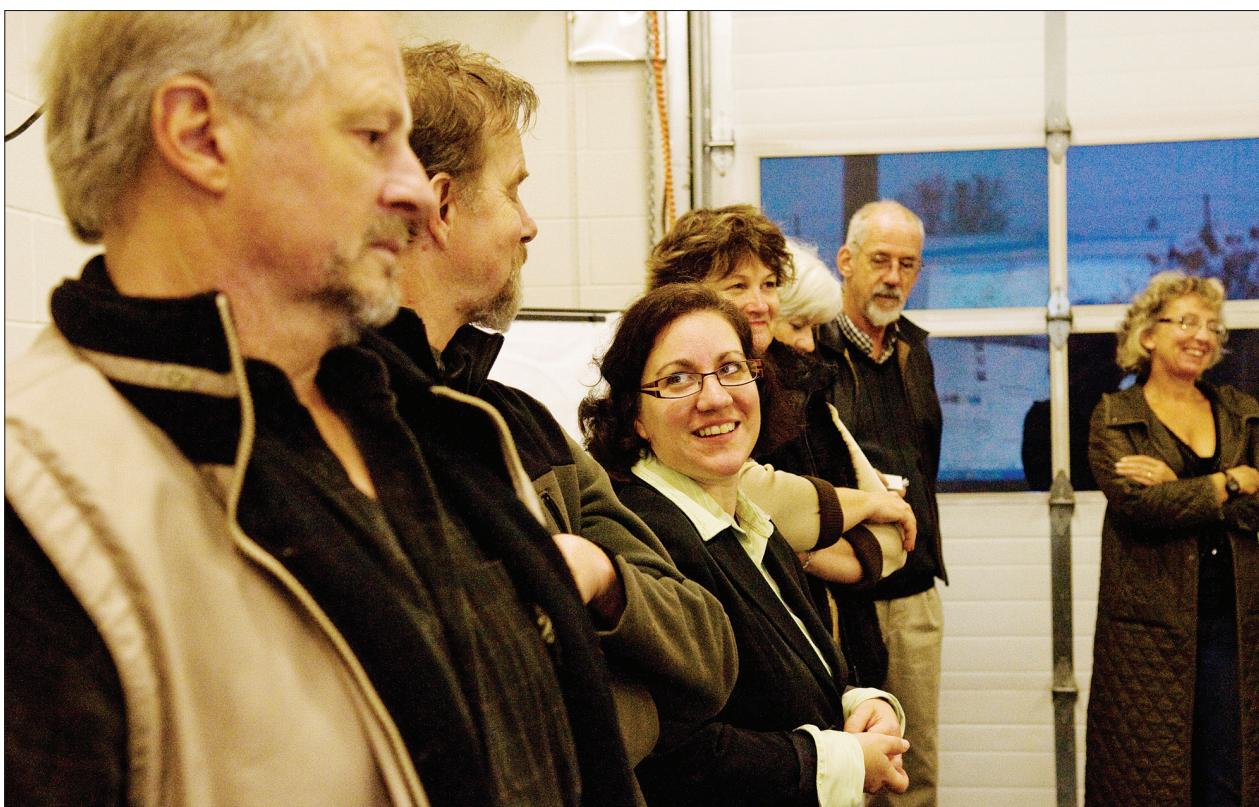

Her home base will continue to be Kinmount, which is located near the centre of the riding.

She's happy to again be elected as the riding's MPP and promises to do her best for the constituents – including working with opposition members of legislature.

"The election's over, we need to rise above that now," she said.

Scott thanked the voters for electing her, along with her campaign team, noting that all of the candidates and their teams worked tirelessly throughout the election.

Scott will be sworn into office officially on Oct. 24.

Rail Trail consultation process explained

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

A consultation process regarding Haliburton County's Rail Trail has made significant progress since its implementation this September.

A report on the project was delivered to members of the county's economic development committee on Oct. 12 by consultant Kate Hall.

The strategy began with the appointment of task group members through a selection process that included Warden Murray Fearrey, Algonquin Highlands Reeve Carol Moffatt, economic development director Bob Smith and Hall.

As a result, seven applicants were chosen.

"We've been pretty active since the group was formed on Sept. 1," said Hall, adding that the group has been meeting on a weekly basis.

During the month of September the group has been focusing on their engagement strategy, which will include surveys and workshops to be participated in by members of the community, said Hall.

The surveys will be conducted online, as well as in paper format with hard copies available for pick-up at the municipal offices throughout the county.

Following the workshops, a community forum will be held in which the results from the workshops will be presented.

This will result in an action plan, drafted by the task group, in which the community's vision for the Rail Trail is conceived.

Hall provided a work plan to the economic development committee, which includes a projected timeline of the process.

"I want to be realistic and accommodate things like hunting season, which basically shuts down the town," said Hall.

According to the schedule Hall anticipates to wrap-up the process in early 2012 with hopes of submitting the action plan in March.

The final step in the process will be an evaluation of the pilot project.

To complete the process in a timely and efficient manner Hall gave a few requests to the committee.

Hall requested the use of community venues in both Minden and Haliburton to conduct the workshops at no charge.

A request was made for additional funding to advertise in local newspapers. A preliminary budget of $500 had already been exhausted, said Hall.

She also requested each municipality post the proposed schedule onto their websites.

The committee, which includes the county's four reeves, agreed to all the requests.

Minden Hills reeve and committee chair Barb Reid requested advertising in local newspapers be expanded to include a recent start-up paper, to which Hall agreed.

Reid also inquired as to who can attend the workshops.

"How are you going to determine you won't get 20 participants all talking about the same issue?" Fearrey.

Participation would be determined through the surveys and specific questions, including what their specific interest in the Rail Trail was, said Hall.

Hall reminded committee members that the task group was not a subcommittee of county council and therefore their meetings were not open to the public.

"People shouldn't be calling these volunteers," she said.

A resolution to use municipal buildings free of charge and to expand local advertising was passed.

The resolution will be brought to county council at their next meeting, scheduled for Oct. 26.

Health unit offers info on bedbugs

Local residents who want to learn how to deal with the problem of bedbugs have the opportunity to get some expert advice.

A Don't Let the Bedbugs Bite public information session will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 25, from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in Haliburton Village. The free event, which is organized by the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit, will feature a public health inspector and Abell pest control specialists discussing ways to identify and prevent bedbugs. Because space is limited, interested people who want to attend are asked to pre-register by calling the health unit's toll-free number at 1-866-888-4577, ext. 482.

"Bedbugs are not just a big city problem, as they have become more prevalent in different settings and communities right across Ontario," says Atul Jain, manager of environmental health with the HKPR District Health Unit.

The health unit has received inquiries about bedbugs from across its district. In recent months, health unit staff have done presentations to a variety of community groups about ways to prevent bedbugs.

"While the thought of bedbugs may make our skin crawl, they are more of a nuisance than a public health risk, as they do not transmit disease," says Jain.

Bedbugs are small, flattened, reddish-brown, oval-shaped insects that are the size of an apple seed. Bedbugs feed on human blood, and typically come out at night biting areas of the body such as the face, neck, upper torso, arms and hands. These bites are painless, but may cause small skin bumps. In some cases, bedbug bites can turn into large, itchy skin welts, but the majority of bites usually go away without treatment.

Bedbug infestations are not the sign of a dirty home, says Jain, noting that "even the cleanest homes, apartments and hotels can have bedbugs."

To prevent potential problems, the health unit advises people to regularly check places where bedbugs can live in a home, including headboards, mattresses, box springs, bed frames and night stands. Inspect any used articles of clothing or furniture bought at garage sales before bringing them home, and if travelling, check for bedbugs in hotel rooms and on luggage.

For more information on dealing with bedbugs, call the health unit or visit www.bedbuginfo.ca.

Palliative suite first step for hospital

Jenn Watt
Editor

No one has a photo of the new palliative care suite fully furnished at the Haliburton hospital.

Not even the hospital itself.

Since the specially designed room for those needing end-of-life care opened its doors in early July, it has been occupied.

A testament to its utility.

"It changes the environment to make it more home-like and comfortable, as opposed to the hospital feel," said registered nurse and palliative care committee lead Stephanie Kuno.

The walls have been painted a soothing neutral tone, while soft lighting and lamps create a warm glow.

In contrast to the fluorescent lights of the hospital corridors, the palliative suite stands apart with its pullout couch, hutch and private kitchen for families.

"The way the room's been designed, it's a separate entity from the floor ... and it is a little more private than any of our rooms and bigger," Deb Watson, chief nursing officer and site manager for patient care, said.

It's a first for Haliburton's facility, which always provided palliative care, but never in such a soothing setting and never with integrated community hospice services.

Supporting the addition of the suite, SIRCH Community Services is redefining its hospice services.

"There will be teams of volunteers that are assigned to a family It will be like an additional extended family there to support you," SIRCH executive director Gena Robertson said.

Her organization has been providing home-based hospice services for the county since 1994 and is providing a new position to assist with the hospital's suite.

"We're probably one of the first hospices to do it this way," said Marilyn Rydberg, the new manager of hospice services for SIRCH.

"Most hospices who provide support ... have volunteers that are rostered in. In a two-week period, you might have 14 volunteers going in at different times. Our concept is to have five or six volunteers who go in [taking turns] to support the family. It will be more intense support."

Prior to Rydberg's arrival, those requiring end-of-life hospice care were tended to primarily by families, with nurses doing what they could, given their hectic schedules.

"Nursing staff are absolutely thrilled to be able to provide an area for family to make a cup of tea or sit beside somebody. They recognized the need for it for a long time. It's nice to see it come to fruition," Watson said.

While the nursing staff always provided palliative care before, what has been brought to the hospital is an enhanced service.

"[Terminal patients] would come to the Haliburton hospital to be cared for in one of the private rooms [in the past]. It was not a home-like setting," Rydberg explains.

"They've always received good palliative care here at the Haliburton hospital. What's changing is they have a home-like setting for ... families to be more comfortable and to provide more volunteer support to offer some compassion."

The plan for an integrated hospital/hospice program came initially from a feasibility study done years ago.

It found in a community as small as Haliburton, a standalone residential hospice just wasn't possible and recommended a partnership.

"The challenge in this community is sustainability. Putting up an independent, residential hospice in this community would have been too expensive at this time. With the infrastructure already in place at the hospital, our capacity to add on a bit and utilize the nursing services ... just made sense," health services CEO Paul Rosebush said.

Rosebush made a palliative suite one of his priorities when he was hired on three years ago and it was integrated into Haliburton Highlands Health Services' strategic plan.

The reconstituted palliative suite is just phase 1 of HHHS's plan.

Phase 2 - a second suite costing about $500,000 - will be decided at the Central East Local Health Integrated Network on Oct. 26.

If approved, Haliburton's facility will expand to include another room, backing onto the hospital's back parking lot. It will have family and kitchen space and enhanced privacy

The completed palliative care suite at the Haliburton hospital prior to furniture being moved in. /Photo submitted from the rest of the hospital.

While the LHIN will decide if the room goes ahead, funding would come from the community - the next campaign by the health services foundation after the X-ray machines are paid for.

Kuno said the addition of the first suite was "huge when it comes to looking after palliative care," and she was personally involved in the committee to design the suite along with registered practical nurse and hospice volunteer Debbie Bain.

While it doesn't change the technical requirements of Kuno's job, she's happy to see the effect it has on families.

"It's more comfortable; it makes them feel like it's more their space than our space."

SIRCH is looking for new hospice volunteers to make the palliative program work. Call 705-457-1742 to get involved or go to www.sirch.on.ca.

A community need

IN JUST MORE than a week, we'll know whether Haliburton has been approved for a second palliative care suite at the hospital.

Those involved in the application to the Central East Local Health Integrated Network say they are "optimistic" that on Oct. 26 this county will get permission to proceed with a $500,000 room specially geared to end-of-life care.

And if response to the first room, opened in July, is any indication, a second suite would be appreciated, used and supported.

The first suite, which is part of phase 1 of the hospital's project, has been refinished to look homey, calming and comfortable.

The walls are neutral tones that glow warmly with lamplight.

There is a kitchen and a pull-out couch for family members that choose to spend long hours with an ailing relative.

It is designed, as one nurse put it, to look more like the family's space than the hospital's.

And it has been in use since the day it opened.

Phase 2 would double the facility's capacity to provide superior palliative care, with a family space, kitchen, a separate entrance and another bedroom.

It would also bring with it a sizeable fundraising goal and necessary long-term community support.

Not only is the hospital now providing a better palliative environment, it is also partnering with SIRCH Community Services, which will be sending teams of hospice volunteers to further enhance services and a coordinator to bring it all together.

With this vast undertaking comes equally vast community support, of which there is no doubt the Highlands will provide. If HHHS gets permission to go ahead with the second palliative unit, money for the build must be fundraised through the HHHS Foundation.

Alongside that fundraising are the efforts of SIRCH, which is putting volunteers into the hospital to provide the hospice care many families depend on.

That organization will not only need our dollars, but also our time, as its volunteers come right out of Haliburton County.

These are serious commitments, but are well within our collective ability to fulfill.

If the LHIN grants us this second suite, which demand dictates it should, there is no question the community will be there to support it.

Tree's company

YESTERDAY, for the first time this season, I pulled my tree stand out of storage and made sure it was safe and sound for use in the field.

For those of you who don't know, a commercial tree stand is a small metal platform with an accompanying seat. You attach this to the trunk of a sturdy tree, usually anywhere from eight feet and up off the ground, depending on the model and style.

Then, when it is affixed, you climb up into it, sit down and strap yourself in.

Aside from giving you a better understanding of what an owl must feel like, tree stands give the hunter a very good vantage point of the surrounding woods. And, even more important, it keeps human scent off the ground - which is particularly important after Mexican food night.

Some hunters will not get off the ground for love nor money. They say there is too much risk involved and that things can go wrong real fast.

Not me - I truly enjoy sitting in a perch 15 to 20 feet off the ground and watching the world go by.

You see all sorts of interesting and unusual things.

Once, I watched a grouse fly by at tree top level and, as he was passing me, he looked over in surprise and then collided head first into the next tree. While this is not a commonly practised method of bird hunting, it got me dinner that night. And there wasn't a pellet to worry about, either.

Steve Galea
Loon Tales

Another time, I was hunting on a secluded patch of private property down south when a teenaged couple decided to trespass and hike down the trail beneath my stand. Not wanting to startle them, I said nothing, hoping that they would continue on and perhaps move a deer my way.

Instead, they decided that this was the best spot in the world to get amorous. So, before things got too awkward, I spoke up.

I believe I said, "I can see you."

To this day, I don't believe they knew where that admonishing voice came from - my stand was concealed in the shadowy recesses of a cedar grove. The only thing they knew for certain was that a deep voice boomed down from the sky above.

I'm no expert on romance, but I suspect this kills the moment. It might also be good for the local church recruitment.

In any case, this is the kind of risk you take when you decide to spend a day sitting high up in a tree watching the birds and the bees.

In all my time hunting, that's really the only truly awkward situation I've ever been in.

I still shudder when I think of it. I mean, all those raging hormones could have ruined a perfectly good hunt.

So is hunting from a tree stand risky?

Well, I suppose that would never have happened had I been sitting on the ground after Mexican food night.

HI KNOW I'M IN FOR TROUBLE," thought Harry. He eyed the newcomer with disgust. Young and perky, the energetic interloper seemed to burst with enthusiasm over the slightest thing. Footwear and newspaper were immensely entertaining while cheap trinkets from the store threw him into spasms of delight. Harry was disgusted. Really had this creature no self-control, no couth?

His name was Jack and while everyone else in the family seemed to think he was wonderful, Harry refused to succumb to the youngster's charms. In fact, he saw no charms at all. Instead what he noticed was the awkward gait, the poor manners, the constant demands for attention.

How could the others not notice these qualities?

Harry was both confused and wary. What need for a Jack when everyone had been getting along just fine? Why change things, make life more complicated, more – well more crowded, especially for Harry? This was perhaps Harry's biggest concern (besides the sheer annoyance of this Jack thing): that he was being replaced and it was only a matter of time before he'd be pushed out entirely. All his years of exemplary behaviour would soon mean nothing in the face of this other "cuteness". It was disturbing.

Harry watched as Jack tried to make nice. Jack walked – no, pranced – over to Harry and invited him to join the fun. Imagine thinking of running around the house as fun! Harry turned his back and walked away. He'd much rather look out the window where the blue jays swooped and dove around the birdfeeder. The leaves were falling quickly today, pulled down by a gusty wind that turned the air yellow and orange with their carnage.

Harry sighed. Winter was coming and that would mean life indoors. Boredom for the most part. He yawned. Well, if Jack thought he was going to take over that chair beside the woodstove he'd soon find out that wasn't going to happen.

Harry cast him a look. The fool was busy with footwear again. Really, he had as much dignity as a dead mouse. At least you could eat that. What could you do with a Jack?

When meal time came Harry and Jack waited to be served. Harry found this a difficult time to be patient though he did try to set an example to Jack. He need not have bothered however because Jack ignored him entirely, jumping around as though he would keel over any minute from hunger. Still Harry had to admit he knew that feeling well enough. They had that in common, if nothing else.

Several days followed in much the same way. Harry was stuck with Jack more and more as the rest of the family went to work and were otherwise occupied. It was not enjoyable outdoors now, the rain pelting against the living room window. Sometimes Harry would gaze out at the bare branches and think wistfully of the long summer days full of chipmunks and cool shady ferns. Jack slept nearby on a blanket folded on the chesterfield. Jack wouldn't really understand about summer yet. He was too young.

Harry watched him sleep and thought of the others who used to live in the house. There were two of them and they had been in the house when Harry first came to live there. The three of them had had some good times together and now Harry smiled to himself as he remembered. Racing up and down the stairs, hiding under the bed, sneaking food off the counter. Oh, they had been a bad bunch, he chuckled inwardly. Jack moved in his sleep and Harry watched him for a minute before returning to once more look out the window.

But over time the other two grew old and then one day they went away and never returned. At first Harry kept looking for them, expecting they'd be home any time. Finally he realized there was just himself now with the family. And that was fine. He adjusted and even grew to like being the only one. Nothing to share, especially the attention. More attention than he had ever enjoyed before. Until now. Now there was Jack and he was still being fussed over, though that had eased up a bit. Harry wasn't sure if Jack had started to get more sense or if he had mellowed a bit but he had to admit there were times when Jack didn't bother him quite so much. He looked over at him again and wondered if Jack was any good at hiding under beds.

A promise should be a promise

To the Editor,
Re: editorial Oct. 11

Yes a promise should be a promise but, we must keep in mind that it was incumbent Liberal Rick Johnson, making the "big ticket" promises not Laurie Scott. Having made the decision to elect Laurie, we cannot put on her the unrealistic expectation of making good on Mr. Johnson's promises.

Some might believe the millions Rick Johnson has spent locally these past two years was provincial Liberal gratitude for the riding having beaten Conservative leader John Tory, in the 2009 byelection. Some, holding the belief John Tory would have won a Conservative majority this time around, go so far as to say that defeat guaranteed the Liberals their 2011 victory.

Regardless, political favour and political promises kept, are, generally speaking, the bailiwick of those in power. For example, it is doubtful the Canadian government would have spent $50 million beautifying Muskoka for the 2010 G8 summit had Conservative Tony Clement not been the riding's MP. While it is worth noting that all the provincial Liberals needed for an historic third majority was for Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock to re-elect Rick Johnson, there is no point speculating what might have been. In Rick's own words the "voters are never wrong."

Laurie has promised to continue to provide the service in this riding we have come to expect from her. I believe she will keep this promise.

Supporting others comes from a place of love

To the Editor,

I learnt a very powerful lesson on the weekend of Sept. 24, from a small town in Ontario. If just one person reaches out with a helping hand, others will follow and together anything is possible! It took just a moment for my friend and I to realize we had entered into a very magical evening. To be a part of someone's 40th wedding anniversary is always amazing, but Kim and Derrell Stamp made their anniversary all the more special by helping others.

My husband was injured in Afghanistan in 2008. His injuries have meant a lifestyle change for us, including the need for a new adapted home. The Stamps, who have become true friends to us during our time of adjusting, on a day that should have been about them, asked their family and friends to help us out by giving donations to go towards the building of our new home. Of course, Kim and Derrell have surrounded themselves with caring, good people who opened their hearts to help. The memory of their raw emotion after watching a video of my husband's recovery will remain in my heart and mind forever.

Mike, my husband, was away the evening of the anniversary helping raise money for other wounded soldiers. So our friend accompanied me to the renewal

Vandals deface tree signs

To the Editor,

We walk the Sculpture Forest two or three times a week and we appreciate the work involved in its constantly changing attractions. In the last year signs have been added to help identify the wide selection of trees that line the paths.

Jim Blake and Tom Ballantine are to be congratulated for making this part of Glebe Park so inviting. So imagine our surprise and utter disappointment to see that recently, vandals have been defacing and damaging these new tree identification signs.

We can't comprehend the mind-set that would cause individuals to do damage to a community attraction like this. (It's even worse than when people use the sidewalk street planters for garbage receptacles.)

Cousins united by historical pic of the past photo

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

It was better than ancestry.com.

When Jeff Sinclair, 55, discovered a photo of his relatives Blaine and Elizabeth Robertson in the May 17, 2011, issue of the Haliburton Echo he was ecstatic.

Standing in front of their log house in Ingoldsby, the photo was submitted by the Robertsons' grandson, Grant McCracken.

Through his cousin Elaine Gilmour, who has a cottage in Ingoldsby, Sinclair was made aware of the photo and the possible family connection.

"Elaine came to me and asked if I recognized the photo. I said 'yeah those are my great grandparents,'" he said.

It didn't take long for Sinclair to contact McCracken, whom he later discovered was his cousin.

"I read that the photo was submitted by Grant, so I contacted the Echo to get in touch with him," he said.

McCracken responded to Sinclair's request and the two corresponded throughout the summer months.

"I didn't even know he existed," said Sinclair of McCracken.

On Sept. 28 the two relatives met for the first time at the Tim Hortons in Minden, accompanied by their wives.

"My grandfather and his mother were brother and sister," said Sinclair.

Sinclair's grandfather was Erastus Robertson, son of Blaine and Elizabeth. McCracken's mother was Florence Robertson, sister of Erastus.

Sinclair's mother was Gladys Robertson, McCracken's cousin.

The oldest of the family, Erastus had little interaction with some members of his family, who were generations apart in age.

With more than 15 years difference between him and his sister, Florence was closer to her younger brother Russell.

Once united by the photo that ran in the pic of the past section of the Haliburton Echo, Sinclair and McCracken exchanged information and stories about their families, as well as historical photos belonging to former family members.

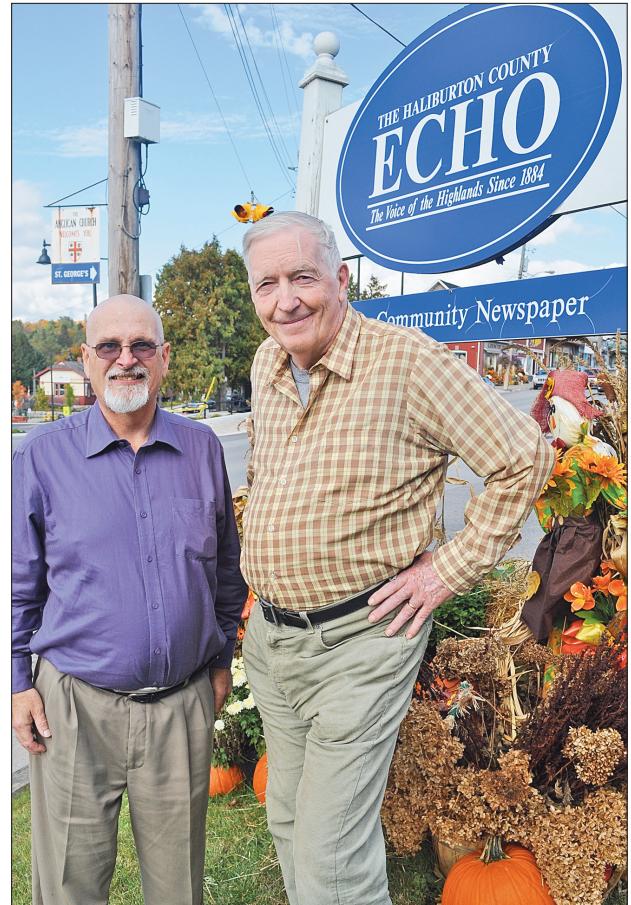

Now a resident of Hamilton, McCracken was born in All-saw, while Sinclair was born in Minden and now resides in Lindsay.

Although many miles apart, the pair is grateful of the newfound connection and hopeful it introduces them to many more relations.

"It's been an informative day for me because there are a lot of things that Grant has told me about the family," said Sinclair.

Time will only tell what other family revelations will be discovered.

"We're definitely going to be staying in contact. Now that I found him I don't want to lose him," said Sinclair.

Right, second cousins Jeff Sinclair, left and Grant McCracken reunite in front of the Haliburton Echo office on Highland Street on Sept. 28.

The family members were united for the first time in their lives as a result of a pic of the past that ran in the Haliburton Echo on May 17.

Pool committee launches cookbook to raise funds for study

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

A new cookbook available in Haliburton County will satisfy the hunger of even the most avid eater.

Launched on Oct. 14, Recipes with a Splash is a fundraiser for the County Swimming Pool Initiative (CSPI), with proceeds going towards a market demand feasibility study.

Compiled by Mary Hamilton, the cookbook is filled with a variety of recipes from finger foods, to dips and even popsicles.

"There are a lot of family favourites in here. As well as simple and easy recipes, which are good for families on the go," said Hamilton, a mother and grandmother.

Along with recipes, the book also includes healthy eating and physical activity tips provided by local health promoter Sue Shikaze, a member of the CSPI.

Parker Pad and Printing president Janis Parker has been supportive of the pool initiative since its inception, printing the cookbooks at a discounted rate as well as providing promotional materials for the committee.

The books are for sale at locations across the county including the Rails End Gallery, Wintergreen, and Eagle Lake Country Market, at a cost of $12.

To date the committee has raised more than $21,000 towards the $35,000 cost of a study.

Those interested in donating to the initiative can make cheques payable to Pool Survey Fund, c/o Bank of Montreal, 194 Highland St., Box 509, Haliburton ON, K0M 1S0.

For more information contact Gay Bell at 705-754-3116.

Angelica Blenich Echo staff

Creators of Recipes with a Splash Janis Parker, left, Mary Hamilton and Gay Bell look up some mouth-watering recipes on the book's official launch date, Oct. 14. The book can be purchased at locations throughout the county at a cost of $12.

Top educator lauds program successes

Dave Flaherty,
Special to the Echo

Trillium Lakelands District School Board (TLDSB) director of education Larry Hope is a proud man right now.

Hope outlined the successes of the board's 2010-2011 strategic plan at the Sept. 27 trustee meeting.

"These folks across the board have worked extremely hard," Hope said.

He highlighted a number of achievements from the past year.

The board implemented a program where vice-principals and principals were trained to serve as mentors for newly appointed school leaders.

"We had been relying on retired administrators but it is now entirely inhouse," Hope said.

He also lauded the board's Earn a Laptop program, where teachers who finish a number of training sessions receive a laptop to use in their classroom. So far, 352 laptops have been given out.

"The director of the Durham board told me they are developing a program like this of their own," he told trustees.

Hope said the board engages parents and grandparents to be involved through workshops and an increased number of parent council meetings.

Because of full-day kindergarten, Hope said Grade 1 teachers need to be prepared for students who will be at a higher level.

"We can't continue to do what we've always done in Grade 1 classes because students are seeing us twice as much," Hope said.

The director said they have made strides in dealing with children's mental health issues as well as increased focus on promoting equality and inclusion.

This includes the establishment of Gay-Straight Alliances (GSAs) at local secondary schools.

"This is something that is long overdue," Hope said. "It gives students a voice instead of being ostracized."

Gingerbread raffle raises funds for Point in Time

CANADIAN COIN ASSOCIATION IN HALIBURTON THIS WEEK!! PURCHASING ALL GOLD AND SILVER COINS!

BY: AMANDA HARDMAN
STAFF WRITER

The Canadian Coin Association has been in Haliburton since Monday, and hundreds of people have been cashing in! The Canadian Coin Association (or the CCA), is interested in Canadian and American coins minted before 1968. Bring your coins to our event, and one of their numismatic professionals (coin experts) will be able to evaluate them for you FREE OF CHARGE! The CCA will also be able to make an on the spot purchase of your coins, offering competitive market value for your coins based on condition, collectability, and bullion value.

In every household, there are handfuls of coins stashed away in dresser drawers, coffee tins, and lock boxes. Why not bring your coins to CCA's professionals for full market assessment, and the opportunity to sell them at maximum value? We represent an international pool of collectors that will often pay a fortune for specific coins in efforts of completing a collection they have been building on for years, or some cases, a lifetime! While at one of their shows in Thunder Bay, Ontario, the CCA was able to offer $94,200 for a 1921 Canadian Nickel, known in the numismatic world as "The Prince of Canadian Coins". While it's true, we don't all have extremely rare coins lying around, it's worth the visit to find out if you've been holding on to a well kept secret! Even common coins with high mintages can be worth significantly more than their face value because of their silver content. Silver dollars, fifty cent pieces, quarters, dimes, and even nickels minted before 1968, are all at their maximum value right now with silver prices at an all time high! It's definitely a sellers market when it comes to bullion!

The Canadian Coin Association is also interested in gold coins from across the world. British Sovereigns, Krugerrands, Liberty Head gold coins, and the Panda gold coin, are all examples of coins that could have significant value both; for their collectability and bullion. Canadian Maple Leafs and Canadian Gold Olympic Coins are also in high demand. With gold markets at over $1,500.00, the CCA can offer incredible prices for your gold coins.

Because of the current success in the gold market, they can also make on the spot purchases of all other gold as well. Scrap gold, unworn, or broken jewelry, even dental gold can be turned into a nice pay day on your end! Because of their continued success within the coin industry, they are able to offer higher prices for your unwanted gold than local jewellers or pawn brokers.

So, whether it's those three quarters you've been holding onto for luck, or the collection you recently inherited, bring them in to the CCA! Sitting down with a knowledgeable professional and get your items assessed for free, and you may walk out with some extra cash in your pocket. Oh, and you just may learn a thing or two! See you there!

Gooderham resident showcases performance at Nuit Blanche

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

This year's Nuit Blanche had some Highlands flair. Artist Victoria Ward of Gooderham brought her heart to the Toronto event for the first time with a reading of her newly written book, A Little Red, which is a revamped version of the Red Riding Hood story that she describes as "a girl, a wolf and Karl Marx, a manifesto in fairytale form."

It depicts Red Riding Hood as the proletariat while the wolf represents communists, she said, and is a mash up of the children's tale and The Communist Manifesto.

Ward read at the Distillery District as part of the Futuristic Institute of Collective Happenings show by friend and peer Thom Sokoloski, who is an established Canadian artist who has worked with Canadian greats such as Murray Schafer, during the autumn Toronto event that showcases contemporary art from a variety of artists from sunset on Saturday, Oct. 1 to sunrise on Sunday, Oct. 2.

Ward even garnered the attention of national newspaper, The Globe and Mail, regarding her performance as one of the top-10 Nuit Blanche picks.

Ward said this annual autumn event was a success for her and the newspaper reference not only gave her attention, but the 30 other artists at the Distillery District, including Sokoloski.

When I was a kid I grew up in a very different time period. It was a very progressive time not a conservative time.

— Victoria Ward, artist

The Highlands artist performed with a red hoodie and jeans, which was inspired by the Girl with the Dragon Tattoo's main character, Lisbeth Salander, and held a basket with copies of her eight-page book.

"When I was a kid I grew up in a very different time period. It was very progressive time not a conservative time ... it not only costs us just economically and politically, but culturally," she said, referring to the late-1960s and 1970s.

She hopes people will be provoked into questioning what is happening in society now.

Victoria Ward of Gooderham performed at this year's Nuit Blanche hosted by Toronto on Saturday, Oct. 1. She was reading from her "a little red." Nuit Blanche is a celebration of art that takes place between dusk and dawn. The locations are all over the city.

and writing, which were combined for this project.

It was also a return to her creative roots of theatre, as she was a regular in the Toronto scene with her work as a playwright and a collaborator with experimental and creative dance during the 1990s.

The Communist Manifesto dates back to the mid-19th century and was written by socialist thinker Karl Marx. It states his political and economic theories that predicted the overthrow of capitalism and advocated common ownership controlling production in a classless society.

Her book is an exact duplication of The Communist Manifesto and was produced by Fleming College instructor Don Taylor, who has taught book binding at the Haliburton campus since 1988.

Ward says the irony of a bank sponsoring the event is not lost on her.

Although she says she's not smart enough or as well-read as she needs to be in order to be a Marxist, she has always appreciated how Marx evoked a humanist and holistic approach to existence and how people are part of history and nature. It is this that makes him relevant today.

This performance is a year in the making and was further encouraged when her husband Gary Blundell and she were on an artist-in-residence experience in Yorkshire, England this past spring. The interest in her concept by people there spurred her on. She believes this particular showcase may just evolve to include additional media for a future showcase in England.

"What I am prepping for next is: finish the site and make the books available to E-readers. Build the installation for some exhibitions I have planned next year (video, paintings, and other things...) and organize getting it over to England. I have a curator over there that is very interested," she said, adding she is working on including her work in Occupy Movements, a protest movement.

The inclusion in Nuit Blanche, she said, was a leap of faith and believes everything is looking great for the project's future.

Children's aid workers head to the picket lines

Dale Clifford
Special to the Echo

The Kawartha-Haliburton Children's Aid Society workers headed to the picket lines Monday.

Following several days of negotiations between the workers, represented by Ontario Public Service Employees Union Local 334 and the agency, including for several hours over the weekend, a settlement couldn't be reached and a decision to go on strike was made at about 11:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 16.

"We are at an impasse and going out on strike," said OPSEU Local 334 president Jennifer Smith. "The membership has had enough and is ready to go."

The workers were seeking concessions on workload, job security, hours of work and layoff language.

Smith described the society as an "oppressive" work environment with workers working long hours, including weekends, to meet government standards and internal policies of the agency that she described as unacceptable.

"It has been a frustrating 13 days of negotiating and there was a lot on the table," said agency executive director Hugh Nicholson. "We didn't engage a lot face-to-face and hopefully we can work things out in the next few weeks."

The local represents about 130 workers, including frontline social workers, child-protection workers and accountants. They have been without a contract since March.

The agency has about 490 ongoing service cases and about 248 children in its care, said Nicholson.

He had assured there would be no break in services if there were a strike.

Maintenance workers needed

Community Care Haliburton County is putting the call out for home maintenance workers throughout Haliburton County.

Are you interested in making a few extra dollars?

They are looking for home maintenance brokered workers to do home maintenance jobs for seniors and adults with disabilities.

Rate of compensation is $15/hr with a minimum of two hours of work.

For more information on becoming a brokered worker for Community Care Haliburton County contact info@community-carehaliburton.com or call 705 457 2941.

A formal affair

Above, Highland Wood residents and their family members were serenaded by violin before feasting on 20 kg of prime rib, potatoes and broccoli at the annual Highland Wood Formal Dinner on Friday, Oct. 14. The dinner is to celebrate the residents and their family members. A special thanks was paid to Ginger Kulas and Beth Archibald, director of care, who is leaving her position at the end of the month.

Left, Highland Wood resident Marion Tallman, left, shares a laugh with friend and former co-worker, Nancy Picard just before the meal was served.

According to Kennedy's report, he anticipates completing his review of the data by November, at which point he will deliver a report of his findings to the committee at their November meeting.

New information regarding the data was brought forth within days of the committee meeting.

"The ministry of health has identified a number of problems with the data and is working to correct the issues and the department will provide an updated report once the issues are resolved," Kennedy told the paper.

Budget update dismal

The EMS department is still looking at ending the year with a $100,000 deficit, according to Kennedy.

The budget deficit was first projected in May of this year and according to Kennedy is still very much a reality.

The Ministry of Health has identified a number of problems with the data.

— Pat Kennedy
EMS Director

"It's been a frustrating year to say the least," he said.

Reasons for the shortfall can be attributed to unbudgeted repairs, wages and rising fuel costs.

This year the department spent $6,000 on repairs to the garage doors at the Haliburton EMS base.

"There have been a lot of unbudgeted items come up this year," said Kennedy.

To recover costs Kennedy has looked at making cutbacks, such as reducing the amount of staff training and additional expenditures.

"We're hoping some of the costs might stabilize after the summer," he said.

PAD program to require funding

The public access defibrillator (PAD) program continues to be a success throughout Haliburton County.

To date the program has grown to include 38 sites, two portable special events units as well as an additional 11 units given to the four municipal fire departments, said Kennedy.

As a result the department is now dealing with providing annual operating costs to ensure the program continues.

"We're the victim of our own success," he said.

According to Kennedy, the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario provided more than $150,000 in capital and training support funding to date to Haliburton County for the program.

To maintain the units and training the department will require ongoing financial support, said Kennedy.

"We're at the point where we have to ask if we keep funding this in-house or go to the private sector," he said.

It costs $8,000 a year to provide this service, according to Kennedy's report. Funding is currently included in the EMS budget.

The department is also looking into costs to replace units, which expire after a five-year period. A number of units throughout the county will expire in 2012 and 2013, he said.

"It's not like expired jam that you can still eat. Once these units expire they no longer work," said Kennedy.

The department was going to request additional funding from the Heart and Stroke Foundation to keep the initiative going.

An official answer on the matter from the foundation is expected within the next few weeks, said Kennedy.

"This is an excellent community initiative," he said.

EMS turns to social media

In an effort to transmit important information across the county, EMS is now using social media such as Facebook and Twitter.

The initiative was spearheaded by EMS administrator Amy Brohm following the tornado in Minden Hills this past spring, said Kennedy.

"We're looking at trying to get information out there faster," said Kennedy.

The department will be posting daily updates to their online accounts, which will direct readers back to the county's official website.

The department can be followed on Twitter by typing in their username, Haliburton_EM. Their Facebook account can be found by typing in Haliburton County EMS into the search field.

Big Bike coming to Haliburton in 2012

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the Oct. 11 meeting of Dysart et al council.

A fundraiser for the Heart and Stroke Foundation will be rolling into Haliburton Village next spring.

Representatives of the foundation made a presentation to council to bring the Big Bike to the municipality in May 2012.

Program coordinator Victoria Thompson explained the details of the fundraiser, which sees a 29-seater bike travel three kilometres for approximately 20 minutes.

Organized teams ride the bike, provided by the Heart and Stroke Foundation, with members raising funds prior to the event.

The bike is taken out in intervals along a predetermined route, chosen with the help of the municipality.

"This event usually raises around $150,000," said Thompson.

Organizers would require the municipality to provide security for the event, as an escort is needed to travel in front of the bike, said Thompson.

While security is usually provided by an OPP officer that is not always the case.

"It can be a volunteer escort if an officer is not available. We have done that in other locations," said Thompson.

The foundation has already set aside May 11, 2012 for the Haliburton event, said Thompson.

The Big Bike fundraiser currently takes place in Peterborough, Orillia and Huntsville, among other places.

Participants are asked to raise a minimum of $50 to take part in the event through donation pledges, said Thompson.

Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey asked if it's up to the foundation to organize the event if the municipality agrees to host it, to which Thompson replied it was.

A resolution allowing the event to be held in May of 2012 was carried.

Arts council calendar to be revamped for 2012

An events calendar created by the Haliburton Highlands Arts Council will not be distributed with the municipal tax bill next year.

Discussions on the calendar and how it is distributed first came up at the Sept. 12 meeting of council.

Arts council coordinator Donna Gagnon made a delegation to council on Oct. 11 to discuss details of the calendar prior to its 2012 release.

One of the complaints received by members of council was the calendar did not offer advertising to all businesses.

"I've had advertisers complain about the process, one real estate agent in particular," said Councillor Andrea Roberts.

The option to advertise was only offered to members of the arts council since it was an initiative of the organization, said Gagnon.

"We can look at doing that differently," she said.

Other complaints included notable events such as the Rotary Carnival being left off the calendar, said Fearrey.

Gagnon pointed out that the Rotary Club was not a member of the organization and that it was difficult to have a complete list of all next year's events in December, when the calendar is being compiled.

While the calendar was a new initiative this year, Gagnon was clear it was still a work in progress.

Fearrey inquired into the possibility of using the Haliburton County Destination Guide as a way to distribute the calendars.

"That's a possibility," said Gagnon.

"I'm in favour of not putting it in our tax bill and putting it into the guide instead," said Roberts.

"I agree because it includes private enterprises," said Councillor Dennis Casey.

Gagnon said she would look into the possibility of changing the calendar's method of distribution.

Heating tender accepted for roads garage

Council has accepted a $27,000 tender from Walker's Heating and Cooling Systems to replace the heating system in the municipal roads garage.

The quotation was the only one received by public works director Brian Nicholson.

The proposal includes installing a propane heating system into the garage, which Nicholson believed was the best option.

Nicholson suggested the municipality issue a separate tender for the propane required to heat the garage.

The replacement was not included in the public works budget for 2011, however $8,500 was included in this year's budget for garage repairs, of which approximately $5,500 remains, said Nicholson.

BIA expansion request sent back to organization

Plans to expand the current boundaries of the Business Improvement Area in Haliburton Village will need more support before council will approve it.

A letter from the BIA executive to council requested a bylaw be passed to expand the geographic boundaries as discussed at the organization's annual general meeting.

Councillor and BIA executive member Andrea Roberts provided an update on the plan.

"I think it's exciting the BIA has done so much in the past few years," said Roberts.

Fearrey inquired as to whether all affected businesses had agreed to the proposed expansion.

"Should we have it in writing that all businesses agree to this before we pass a bylaw?" asked Fearrey.

"Probably," replied Roberts.

Clerk Cheryl Coulson said logically speaking the expansion would probably not become a reality until 2012.

"It's good to have an indication first, like Murray said, before we proceed," said chief administrative officer Tamara Wilbee.

The current municipal bylaw states the BIA needs to receive two thirds of the affected businesses' support before proceeding.

However, Roberts said it was important the expansion not be a forced one and therefore the organization was looking for closer to 95 per cent of affected businesses agreeing.

Roberts reminded council it was actual property owners and not tenants that needed to give approval.

New treasurer appointed

The municipality has hired Barbara Swannell to fill the role of treasurer effective Oct. 24.

Swannell will be replacing outgoing treasurer Brooke Irvine, who worked within the municipality for the past 31 years.

Irvine is retiring this November.

Head Lake Trail Committee dissolves

The Head Lake Trail committee will no longer exist after council decided to dissolve it and thank its members for their contribution.

The decision was made after the committee sent a letter requesting future direction from council, following their Sept. 21 meeting.

At the meeting discussions ensued on the purpose of the committee and if future management could be facilitated by the municipality's parks and recreation department.

Committee members agreed the group had fulfilled its purpose.

Reads of the week

Book of the Week, Adult Title:

Haunting Jasmine by Anjali Banerjee
A call from the past brings divorcee Jasmine Mistry home to Shelter Island to run her beloved aunt's bookstore, which has always been rumoured to be haunted.

With that knowledge, Jasmine embarks on a mystical journey, urged along by her quirky family, and guided by the highly emotional spirits of long-dead authors.

Surprisingly, she finds herself moved to heal her broken heart when she falls unexpectedly in love with an enigmatic young stranger.

Haunting Jasmine is available from the library in both print and e-book formats.

Book of the Week, Junior Title:

Stink: Solar System Superhero by Megan MacDonald

When Stink Moody learns that Pluto has flunked the Planet Test for being too "shrimpy," he has no choice but to take a stand. Will our humble hero Stink be smart enough to defeat a panel of big-shot scientists and the class know-it-all, Riley Rottenberger? To find out, you can request Stink: Solar System Superhero in book or talking book formats at the library.

Local Celebrity Read:

Mark Rodden is reading Introducing Heidegger by Jeff Collins.

"What does it mean to exist?" is exactly the kind of question German philosopher Martin Heidegger agonized over. His central belief was that philosophy, and society as a whole, was preoccupied with what it is that exists – so much so that we have overlooked the basic question of what existence actually means. If this sounds complicated to you, consider reading Jeff Collins's Introducing Heidegger, a thoughtfully rendered overview of Heidegger's philosophies.

Mark Rodden, a local composer, producer and host of Canoe FM's Candlelight and Beer, explains, "Martin Heidegger, one of the greatest and most recondite of modern philosophers, had a knack for making even the simplest points inaccessibly abstruse." For the budding philosopher, Rodden suggests that, "before tackling any of his dense, neologism-laden works read Introducing Heidegger (an efficiently explanatory book of the illustrated Idiot's Guide to... sort) available at the library; the author, Jeff Collins, neatly summarizes Heidegger's best ideas."

All that jingles... exploring persuasive music

Greg Roe

Music Notes

"You'll wonder where the yellow went, when you brush your teeth with___."

If you were able to fill in the blank with the appropriate word, it suggests two things about you the reader. One, you are likely 50 years or older and, two, you likely now have a catchy tune running around in your head. This is of course, what the advertiser wanted to happen and it acknowledges the power of music in advertising. The product, in this case, is Pepsodent toothpaste, which used this catchy jingle to sell millions of tubes of their product.

Companies that produce jingles have for decades recognized that music, unlike daily speech, is a memorable form of sound. It can stick in the listeners brain and turn it into an involuntary "music box." The tune can pop into your head at any time and in the strangest of places, but most importantly it may well lead you to the shelf where Pepsodent is when the need to buy toothpaste arises.

Advertising jingles must have three qualities to be successful. They must be short, easy to understand and easily recognizable. As well, the words cannot be ignored in the equation and generally meet the same characteristics. Another good example, would be 967 - 11 - 11. Simple "words" and a catchy tune! Do you recognize the product, the tune and the phone number? An advertising coup! A jingle, to be successful, must also recognize its target market. Therefore, if you are trying to reach an older buyer you are not likely to use a tune that is rap or hip hop inspired. Another beauty of the jingle is that it can be used in a different media such as radio, television and in today's world, websites. Once ingrained, they can also be useful in print media when a customer reads the words and invariably hears the tune and thinks of your product. Jingles are versatile and they work. Jingles, however, are not the only way music is used in advertising. In fact, the next time you watch television look for a commercial that doesn't have music. Sometimes small portions of a whole song can be strong advertising tools. Microsoft saw fit to pay the Rolling Stones a large sum of money for the right to use the song Start Me Up, for their introduction of new software. It was a well-known tune that recognizes a demo graphic and sends a message that the product is reliable and once up and running, "will never stop." Another good example of this is General Motors using Bob Seeger's, Like a Rock. Again it recognizes a demographic and sends the message that their trucks are tough and reliable. You could even say that this ad tends to be gender specific, appealing mainly to men and even to a certain group of men. The topic of music in advertising is huge. Simply put, music is a tool that has limitless potential and advertisers know that. As a parting gesture I think I'll see if I can leave you with another tune in your head. So until next month, remember...

"Mr. Clean, can clean your whole house and everything that's in it!"

The Adam Scott Collegiate Vocational Institute Lions showed their knack for shutting out opponents is no fluke when they came to Haliburton.

When Haliburton hosted the Lions on Thursday, Oct. 13, they had only enjoyed lopsided victories, outscoring their opponents by 15 goals and not allowing any goals, let alone shots, in three games.

Despite the varsity A field hockey team's domination of play, holding possession for more than 90 per cent in this game and shutting down wave after wave of Lions' offensive drives, the league-leading Red Hawks finished with a scoreless draw. They remain undefeated, but disappointed with the tie.

Haliburton's coach Caley Sisson said the team had its chances to score, but couldn't capitalize, particularly on set plays and when you have 14 short corners and cannot convert one then it's pretty obvious what we'll be working on in practice.

The Lions were only rewarded with one short corner for the entire game.

It was Red Hawks' toughest test in league play, as the Lions already have four scoreless draws to their credit.

Their coach was quick to point out that she had her entire lineup, including two players that missed their last two games. She said they needed them against the high-powered Red Hawks' offense.

Red Hawks capture third Turkey title

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

It was pretty easy for the Red Hawks varsity B field hockey team when they hosted the third annual Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Turkey Tournament on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

This tournament is held immediately following the Thanksgiving long weekend with an emphasis on skill building and provides additional competitive playing experience for novice teams in the area.

Haliburton has always been the most advanced team and a perennial favourite at this three-game tournament, winning it all three years. This year wasn't any different when it invited schools from Bancroft, Peterborough and Parry Sound.

The Red Hawks opened the tournament with a closely contested 1-nil victory over North Hastings, which was followed immediately with an 8-nil win over the outclassed St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Secondary School Titans.

In the last game of the day, Haliburton finished with a 5-nil win against Parry Sound to finish undefeated (3-0) and outscored their opponents 14-0.

Coach Steve Smith said the tournament is a greater building block to the team's ultimate goal.

"From here we continue to build emphasis on team and the team goal of [making a trip to the] Kawartha [finals] again. [Also,] to maintain a strong offence and defence. Players that have been playing strong and improving are all our midfield players, and all of our first year players who are learning the game," coach Smith said.

The Red Hawks played an aggressive style of play between the whistles, but were never without an encouraging word or helpful direction for short and long corners for the beginner players.

For the tournament, the goal scoring was distributed throughout the team, but was led by Julia Fedeski's four goals, followed by Connor Marsden's three. The assist leaders were Ali Valleau, Fedeski and Breanna LaRue.

Goalie Shelby Hunter earned all three shutouts in the tournament.

North Hastings finished with two wins, losing their only game to Haliburton while Parry Sound came third with one victory and the Titans were fourth winless through three games.

Haliburton has won this tournament every year since it started.

Haliburton's inability to score wasn't from a lack of effort, Sisson said.

With the back checking of the midfielders and anchored at the back by Vicky Bukta, the Red Hawks didn't allow a shot on goalie Jenn Woolacott, who earned her fourth shutout in as many games.

On the other side of the pitch Lions' keeper Rebecca Hubble earned her fourth shutout in the game, turning away close to a dozen shot (and easily saw close to two dozen shots in her direction).

The team will look to rebound from the disappointing draw with a better game against St. Peter's Secondary School in Peterborough on Oct. 18.

Haliburton will host the Central Ontario Secondary School Athletics final on Oct. 27.

The Haliburton Red Hawks senior boys' soccer teams offense over powered the visiting Brock High School Bulldogs at Gary G. Brohman Field on Oct. 11.

The team soared over their opponents with a 5-0 victory to improve their record.

The senior boys kept the ball in Brock's end of the field for most of the contest.

Brett Yake started the scoring by carrying the ball through a few defenders and burying it into the bottom corner.

Kieran Poropat added an insurance marker, as it was all the goals they needed to win the game, late in the half to make the score 2-0.

In the second half, Yake scored another goal off a scramble out front to increase the lead by three goals.

Nick Hunter scored a highlight reel goal with a header from a corner kick by Tanner Hamilton to add to the lead.

After hitting the crossbar a few times, Hamilton was finally able to put one past the keeper to extend the lead to five.

The Red Hawks decided to play more defensively, which gave the Bulldogs more scoring chances

The Bulldogs got their only three shots of the half in the dying minutes but could not score, as goalkeeper Elijah Anger was up to the task.

Wildcats top Red Hawks

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

In Haliburton's version of a David and Goliath style battle David lost out.

Coming in with an undefeated record through five games and the perennial soccer power in Kawartha, the I.E. Weldon Secondary School Wildcats showed the skill, poise on the ball and finish it takes to be champions when they played the Red Hawks senior boys' soccer team on Thursday, Oct. 13.

The game started slowly. Lindsay, like a boxer, probed the Red Hawks defence for weaknesses, jabbing with long balls and quick runs with the ball.

Haliburton were composed despite the attacks and were quick to the loose balls, clearing it from danger, leaving goalie Elijah Anger with little to worry about.

Red Hawks players Nick Hunter and Jacob Harrison, who was acrobatic in his clearing attempts, showed their competency in marking players and kicking away long Wildcats' passes during this feeling out process executed like a surgeon by the relatively mammoth AAAA school, which is the equivalent of pitting a Honda Fit to a Dodge Charger.

The scoring chances were few for the Red Hawks.

Hunter though scored with a header from a mishandled cross by the Wildcats' keeper. This equalizer helped to square the game 1-1.

Unfortunately, it was quickly countered with a Lindsay goal from a free kick to reclaim the one goal lead 2-1 and then added to with two more goals immediately following the halftime break.

In the offensive end the teams' leading scorer Brett Yake had little time and space, marked often by two and three defenders.

When Yake did find space, he scored. It came from an initial strike at goal from teammate Greg Foster, the Red Hawks drew to within two goals (4-2) during the second half. It was the closest they got.

As the game wore on the Wildcats pulled ahead with three unanswered goals, including a highlight worthy headed goal off a free kick taken from just inside Wildcats end. It left even the Red Hawks players in disbelief.

The 7-2 loss drops the Red Hawks to three losses.

Haliburton has had a decent season with a record of 2-2-1 entering play. Excluding one game, which they should have won, the team has been competitive.

However despite their efforts the team was clearly out-classed by the Wildcats who brought a sustained attack, testing Red Hawks goalie Anger repeatedly.

Coach Rob Gervais said the game was great opportunity for his players to see a championship caliber team.

Although the Red Hawks lack the skill of Lindsay, they represented their school well, playing hard until the whistle and did not resort to any unsportsmanlike behaviour, as the Wildcats' captain exhibited when he regularly kicked the ball away from Haliburton players during ball possession changes awarded by the referee.

Juniors held scoreless

The Red Hawks could do little against the visiting I.E. Weldon Secondary School Wildcats, as the visitors easily won 5-nil.

This game comes after a 4-1 road loss against the Hurricanes of Holy Cross Catholic Secondary School on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The Wildcats scoring was limited by solid goalkeeping by the Red Hawks tandem of Nate Feir and Hunter Thompson, who each shared a half.

25 years serving county's ears

Since 1986, Gord Kidd has been providing hearing tests to clients in Haliburton County.

As a registered hearing instrument specialist and dispenser, Gord has 25 years training and experience.

If the test implies a medical solution, Gord will provide a copy of his test to your doctor.

Getting your hearing tested after the age of 50 should be part of your overall medical file.

Many wait until their hearing becomes poor, and then come for a test at the insistence of their family and friends. Gord does not charge his clients for adult hearing tests.

If the test implies a hearing device will improve your hearing, Gord will fit a hearing device from a variety of models available from the world's leading manufacturers. Gord does not charge you for this.

Gord says, "I first provided hearing tests in Dr. Dawson and Dr. Holiday Rhode's offices in Minden in the mid-1980s. There was a need for my service, and since I had enjoyed the beauty of the Highlands from my early teens as a hiker and camper, it was not a difficult decision where I would work and live. I opened my first office in Minden. I purchased my home at Minors Bay." Since 1999, his home is in Haliburton Village.

"My wife Kathryn and I are so very grateful to live and work in this beautiful county," Gord continues. "We are here to serve the hearing impaired long after they receive their hearing aid(s). We are testing in four locations in Haliburton County: Minden, Haliburton,

Titans dash Red Hawks' victory chances

Struggling to score down the stretch proves costly against St. Thomas Aquinas

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

Just call them the heartbreak kids.

If currency could be considered effort, sweat and the proverbial tears (although in the Haliburton case it was for smiles, as this squad shows their love for the game, smiling throughout it all), the Red Hawks varsity girls' basketball team would be undefeated this season.

However for all their hustle and effort the team seemingly can't buy a win after losing to the visiting St. Thomas Catholic Aquinas Secondary School Titans in Haliburton 28-25 on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

When the Titans came to town no one knew what to expect let alone the barnburner of a game that included a pair of lead changes for each team.

Both teams traded countless turnovers (as is often the case in high school ball) and had their chances to score, but the Red Hawks distinguished themselves with a tireless effort to dive to the deck first for loose balls and leap out of bounds to save a ball.

It's worthy to mention the team left everything on the floor, employing a vigorous defensive press, which was led by shooting guard Casey Pringle, who has been the team's sparkplug, to the always composed point guard Rider, guard Maia O'Sullivan who wasn't to be outdone in the hustle department and forward Kate Denniston, including ever aggressive Carley Shaw. Strong down in the post and in the blocks, pulling down rebounds and changing shots with her positioning, Tessa Iles was also a competent scorer, leading the team with half of her seven points nearing the final minutes of the fourth quarter to give a short lead of 23-17.

Down the stretch, Haliburton could do little to stem the tide of the Titans' 9-0 run, which was only slowed by Kate Denniston bucket off a teammate's miss to draw the club to one point 26-25.

Under one minute left in the game the Titans' added a bucket for the insurance they needed to hang on. It was all that was needed, as the Red Hawks were unable to score in the final seconds.

With Rider out in the fourth quarter to fouls, Denniston stepped in nicely pulling down rebounds and moving to space on the floor for easy looks.

Head coach Walter Tose was impressed by her fourth quarter performance and said it was her best game.

It was only a week ago that Haliburton lost by the same three-point margin to the Fenelon Falls Falcons.

Rider was second on the team with six points. Titans player MaKenna Flynn led all scorers with 10 points.

It's hard to tell if his beaming smile is for being inducted or from the sweet memory of beating cross town rivals from the University of Toronto more than 53 years ago.

Haliburton resident Art Ward, who is still an imposing figure, standing in excess of 6', can practically taste the mud from when his Ryerson Rams football team defeated Toronto 8-7 at Varsity Stadium in 1958.

The memories came flooding back when Ward was inducted into the Ryerson University's Athletics and Recreation Hall of Fame with 12 of his former teammates for being part of the school's first team to capture an Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Association (OIAA) championship during an induction ceremony held at the George Vari Engineering and Computing Centre in Toronto on Friday, Sept. 23.

According to the school newspaper at the time it took only a few seconds before there was nothing left of the uprights, which were broken apart and distributed to the Ryerson faithful in attendance following the win.

Ward doesn't have his splintered souvenirs anymore, but

Art Ward entered the Ryerson Hall of Fame for being part of the 1958 football team that won the school's first Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship in a ceremony held in Toronto on Friday, Sept. 23. Ward still has his 74 number and the ceremony brought a flood of memories.

lished football powers Queen's University and Toronto.

In seasons past, he said, the team didn't even have wins let alone a winning a season up to a year before the championship win.

"Ryerson was always the poor cousin until the year before in 1957 and again in 1958. We started to win some games and prevailed in '58," he said.

He can still remember making the bumpy three-mile drive on a three-tonne stake truck, donned in his gear sitting on the blocking dummies with his 34 other teammates, to practice at Riverdale Park.

"When it was raining we had a tarp to stretch over the top of the stakes. Of course, the truck didn't go that fast ... the damned tarp had so many holes in it was like sitting under a sieve," he said.

When he heard news of the induction from his wife Joan he had thought it was for the Canadian Football Hall of Fame. For a while he had "lorded" over his brother-in-law about the induction. Both actually tried out for the Toronto Argonauts and made the team, making the roster, but not returning the following season, he said.

The jovial Ward, who was restricted to six guests initially, had the largest contingent of support with 18 friends and family members, including his three grown children.

This induction was part of Ryerson University's Alumni Weekend.

Above, Art Ward, who was inducted into the Ryerson University's Athletics and Recreation Hall of Fame, made sure to get the autographs of his former teammates who shared in the glory to defeat the University of Toronto in 1958. Ward wore 74 and remembers the game as a sloppy contest. Right, Ward's team photo was framed with the accomplishments listed.

MEN'S FOOTBALL
OQAA CHAMPIONS 1958-1959

In 1958, Ted Toogood coached the football Rams to their first OQAA championship with an 8-7 victory over Toronto. The Ryersonian wrote "it took seven seconds for the goal posts to come down. The uprights were felled, splintered and distributed among the frantic Ryerson supporters". Ryerson finished the year with a record of five wins and one loss, while recording a number of firsts for the program. In addition to the first championship, the team recorded its first ever victories over established programs Queen's and U of T. The Rams practiced at Riverdale Park and the Maple Leaf baseball field, while home games were at Varsity Stadium. The Rams traveled to practices and games in an open-air pick-up truck with all 30 players standing in the back.

inductees is expected to be in the renovated Maple Leaf Gardens on the third floor, which is expected to open later this autumn.

Ward's coach Ted Toogood died this past August, but learned of the induction before his passing.

Besides Ward's team this year's inductees included athletes (Ken Austin and Natalie Dabit Phillips), leader (Andy Parnham), and builder (George Cormack).

The hall inducts alumni every two years and started in 2001.

Cody capitalizes on chance

It might be premature, but Cody Hodgson is making it a lot easier for his coach to keep him on the second line for the Vancouver Canucks.

Only a few months ago, Hodgson was left out of the lineup watching the Stanley Cup Finals against the Boston Bruins, but is being given the chance to finally prove himself centring a line that includes Marco Sturm on left and Mikael Samuelsson on right.

He came through for his coach Alain Vigneault when he popped in the equalizer to tie the game 2-2 early in the third period against the Columbus Blue Jackets at the Nationwide Arena in Columbus on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Hodgson's first goal of the season came right after a Cory Schneider game saver on a penalty shot taken by Blue Jackets Maksim Mayorov in the third period.

Assisted by Dan Hamhuis, Hodgson led the eventual comeback, which was in doubt as the Canucks were practically dead to rights until the Schneider save.

The Canucks won the game 3-2.

Duchene dekes his way to first

Haliburton's Matt Duchene, a centre with the Colorado Avalanche, tallied his first goal of the season against the Ottawa Senators in the nation's capital on Thursday, Oct. 13.

Duchene also had a helper in the 7-1 win and now has three points (one goal two assists) in four games.

Highlands produces strong runners

Darren Lum
Staff reporter

Young Haliburton runners are proving there's more to the Highlands than meets the eye.

It's practically the proving ground for the success behind cross-country runners from area schools such as Stuart Baker Elementary School (SBES) and J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School (JDHES) coaches say.

With a hilly course of trails to train on behind both schools, the Haliburton runners were well prepared and had a strong day of performances, punctuated by SBES Mikayla O'Neill's second place in the primary girls race, which had a field of 136 runners, at the Trillium Lakelands District School Board Cross Country Meet at the Ken Reid Conservation Area just outside Lindsay on Wednesday, Oct. 5.

There were more than 900 runners from 26 schools competing at this event.

SBES coach Stephanie Metzger said it wasn't just the team, but an atmosphere of the entire school that has embraced running, which has been a major ingredient to success.

SBES also had three other primary aged girls place in the top 10: Skye Lambshead finished fourth, Lexie Bridgeman finished seventh and Britney Bain finished ninth.

Primary boy Joe Boice finished seventh.

The SBES primary girls and the primary boys placed second in the team categories.

The JDHES Jaguars cross-country team was led by intermediate girl Kenndal Marsden's seventh place, followed by junior boy Lucas Haedicke's eighth place and intermediate boy Shane O'Reilly's 10th place finish.

The JDHES intermediate girls team combined efforts to finish second while the senior boys finished third.

The Jaguars will compete in one more meet in Bracebridge on Oct. 21.

Bantam girls lose to Whitby

The Highland Storm Bantam B girls' hockey dropped a 2-1 decision to the Whitby Wolves last night on the road. Erin Little tied the score at one, with just under a minute left in the game. Whitby fought right back and caught the tired Storm girls' squad flat-footed and notched the winner late in the third period. Sydney Feir will be back with the club soon and the extra skater will help offset the short team list.

Atom As gave it their all

The Atom As started out the day playing the Ennismore Eagles. With a hard fought battle, the game ended up tied 1-1. Both goals were scored in the first period within the first minute of play. The rest of the game was back and forth, with all players skating hard, battling up and down the ice. Both goalies were standing on their heads saving every shot, not wanting to give up the next goal. Goal scored was by Lucas Haedicke, assisted by Austin French and Nik Dollo.

Game #2 the boys faced off against North Frontenac Flyers, winning this game 3-2. The boys had another equally even battle game against this team. They found themselves skating another fast paced game. Fortunately this one we came out on top, goals scored by Owen Gilbert (2), and Lucas Haedicke.

Our third game of the day our opponents were the Wasaga Beach Stars, this game we were beaten 6-1. We gave it a great try, but were unfortunately out played, and eliminated from the semi finals on Sunday.

The goal scored this game was scored by: Owen Gilbert, assisted by: Luke Hunter, and Lucas Haedicke. With some very fast paced skating, and some great goal tending throughout the day we gave it our all, great job, boys!

Peewee As host fall classic

This weekend saw the Pharmasave Peewee As hosting the Matt Duchene Fall Classic in Minden on Saturday for the round robin and then Sunday in Haliburton for the semi-finals and championship games. The Storm played three games on Saturday, the first being against the Georgina Blaze. The boys played a good game and were in control of the puck a lot of the time. The score was 7-1 for the Storm, with goals going to Mark Saville, Matt Wilbee, Chris Thompson (2), Kyle Cooper, Andrew Hall and Jake Bull. Assists to Ethan Keefer, Chris Thompson, Matt Wilbee, Chase Burden, Kyle Cooper, Jake Bishop, Josh Boice and Jake Bull.

The second game against the Mariposa Lightning proved to be much the same with the Storm once again winning 7-1.

Goals going to Greg Crofts, Andrew Hall, Chris Thompson (2), Matt Wilbee, Jake Bishop, and Kyle Cooper. Assists to Kyle Cooper, Josh Boice, Andrew Hall, Mark Saville, Ethan Keefer, Matt Wilbee, Jake Bishop, Max MacNaull, and Chris Thompson. The third game proved to be a bit more challenging for the Highland Storm

Highland Storm Peewee A hockey players skate to teammate Chris Thompson, far right, in celebration after he scored the equalizer, drawing the Storm and the Mississauga Hurricanes even 2-2 during the semi-finals of the Matt Duchene Hockey Tournament on Sunday, Oct. 16. team as they played against the Centre Hastings Grizzlies who had won all their previous games (like the Storm) and were not about to lose this one. The Storm team lost 3-6, but this still meant they would be playing a semi-final game on Sunday. Goals for this game went to Chase Burden, Matt Wilbee and Mark Saville, assists to Jake Bishop, Mark Saville, Matt Wilbee and Chris Thompson.

Sunday's game in Haliburton was against the Mississauga Hurricanes and once again forced the Storm to watch what kind of hockey they were playing. The Highland Storm just managed to win this one 3-2 with a go ahead goal in the third period by Matt Wilbee, his second of the game. The other goal went to Chris Thompson. This moved the team on to the championship round against Centre Hastings Grizzlies!

This final game was played with a little hesitation on the part of some of the Storm players because of the game the day before.

Wilberforce

Hilda Clark

448-2018

While on a weekend tour through this area over 20 members of the Motor City Car Club from Oshawa made a planned visit to the Wilberforce Red Cross Outpost Historic House Museum on Saturday, Oct. 15. Led by Gary Challice they were a very friendly group that took good interest in the museum's history. Several spoke of returning as individuals to spend more time observing the displays. The rainy weather didn't dampen their enthusiasm. They continued merrily on, in their well preserved, well maintained antique cars, stopping for lunch at the Algonquin Cookhouse in Harcourt.

Do you enjoy hot soup and fresh bread? Like to top a meal off with cake and tea or coffee? That's what you can enjoy at a loonie lunch at St. Margaret's Anglican Church on Thursday, Oct. 27 between 11:30 and 1 p.m. Contribute a loonie or two if you are able. Haven't got a loonie? Come anyway.

Children are invited to a Monster Mash at the Wilberforce library on Saturday Oct. 29. It's a Halloween party from 1 to 3 p.m. There will be spooky stories, treats, games, songs and crafts. Costumes are welcome. Children must be supervised by adults who should enjoy the fun, too. Be prepared for a slimy goo surprise. Sounds like a lot of fun.

The congregation and clergy of St. Margaret's were pleased to welcome the Rt. Rev Linda Nicholls, bishop of the Trent Durham Area of the Toronto Diocese on Sunday, Oct. 16. Nicholls delivered the sermon and led the service of Holy Communion. A time of refreshment and fellowship followed.

There's ice in the arena and lots of action there last Saturday. And speaking of ice, it's time to think curling. There's an open house at the Wilberforce Curling Club on Tuesday, Oct. 18 between 7:30 and 9 p.m. You can register there for the season and decide which league or leagues in which you wish to play and pay your fees.

Enjoy some wine and cheese and listen to live music. We welcome Melannie Lewis and Tammy Vaughan as co-leaders of the club this season. Best wishes to them. They hope there will be lots who sign up for Monday night mixed, Tuesday night women's Wednesday daytime mixed and Thursday night men's leagues.

A number of Wilberforce area residents were among the appreciative audience at a very exciting concert on Saturday evening Oct. 15 at the Northern Lights Pavilion in Haliburton. This had to be one of the most greatly enjoyed concert ever in the Haliburton Concert Series. Guy Few, trumpet, cornet and piano, Leslie Fagan, soprano and Stephanie Mara piano are incredible musicians who have come together as Project Aria. Their amazing talent, their joy in sharing it and their charming personalities had the audience enthralled throughout this evening of J.S. Bach, Scarlatti, Mozart, Mendelssohn, J. Greer and Handel.

Team plays with hesitation against Grizzlies

The Grizzlies dominated more of the game than the Storm. They lost the game 4-2 and came away in second place, still not bad for a weekend of hockey and the first real competition they have encountered this season. Goals went to Josh Boice and Matt Wilbee, assists to Chase Burden, Jake Bull, Chris Thompson and Ethan Keefer. Many thanks to all the parents who coordinated the event and volunteered their time to ensure a successful tournament.

Coach pleased with Bantam AE players

The Highland Storm Bantam AE team sponsored by Dave's Landscaping and McKee Security travelled to Port Carling on the weekend to play the Thunder. The Thunder came out flying and put their size advantage to good use. They finished each check and punished every puck carrier in an attempt to intimidate their smaller opponent. Port Carling scored first on a power play at 3:51 of the first period. The physical and high tempo style had the Storm in trouble but goalkeeper Cole Finlay held the fort under tremendous pressure while the boys adapted to the opponent.

The second period began much better for the Storm as they responded well to the pace of play. They tied the score while enjoying a two-man advantage. Jayden Wood scored the goal with a nice spin move in front of the net and slipping the puck into the far corner. Angus Sullivan and Hunter Bishop drew the assists. Unfortunately for the Storm everything unraveled in a two minute span where the Thunder scored four goals. The goals were very similar in nature as the home team sent big bodies to the net and then scored in the ensuing chaos.

Just nicely arrived on Saturday evening from nearly two weeks in Lake Cowichan, B.C., where we visited our son Andy Cooper, and our daughter-in-law, Kim and their children, Sharai and Logan.

It's late and I haven't been able to collect any news, but I can tell you of the fundraiser Dancing for Dollars to support Julie Barban's Heritage Ballet. Ten of Julie's ballet students will be travelling to Russia in March to observe first hand how it is danced in Russia. The program on Oct. 21 begins at 7:30 p.m. At the community centre here and will consist of dancing by the Haliburton Twirlers' square dancers as well as numbers by Julie's dancers. There will be musical presentations by local people as well, and as always, refreshments will be served. Donations will be accepted at the door.

We're proud that Brian Daoust, a local resident on the Green Lake side of Grass lake, had such success in his initiative once again this raising funds for the health services to the amount of $35,000 by means of the radiothon with Canoe FM and Moose FM.

Our sympathy to Wayne and Glen Sawyer whose sister Gwen Cameron died on Oct. 1, and especially to her husband Clint Cameron.

Thank You Cards

Thank You

The Haliburton and District Lions Club thanks all who participated in our fourth annual Purina Walk for Dog Guides. Thanks to your efforts, we were able to raise over $3600.00 for this fabulous cause.

Special thanks go to;

Carol Dewey of Teddy Time for her sponsorship.

Gord Kidd and the Mainstream Country Band for their great music.

Steve Todd of Todd's Independent for supporting the BBQ

Robyn De Foe of Head's Up for her donation of prizes.

Hike Haliburton for including us in their program

Nadia Pagliaro and Arianne Gervais for their K9 Cookies and their donation

Haliburton Veterinary Clinic, The Grooming Studio and Linda and Bob Heeps

And, of course, the great Haliburton Lions who made it all work.

This ad was paid for by the individual members of the Haliburton & District Lions Club.

Want to become involved in our great organization?

Call Lion Ray at 705-448-2466.

Congratulations on your retirement
Deirdre!

This is your time with Barry to enjoy yourselves.

We wish you all the best as you begin this new phase of your life,

From all of us at CHCFC

In memoriam

WHITNEY, Mary I. - In loving memory of my mother who passed away October 19, 1995.

Even though you're far away

I think about you every day.

You were more than just a mother.

You were my best friend.

Sadly missed,

Card of Thanks

The family of the Late J.B. Trepanier (Bern) would like to express our heartfelt thanks to friends and neighbors for their support during this transition in our lives. We were truly overwhelmed and comforted by the members of the community, friends and acquaintances that joined us for Bern's 'Celebration of Life' gathering. The many cards & phone calls offering condolences, as well as donations to the Heart & Stroke Foundation in Bern's memory were appreciated dearly.

A special thank you to Murray Hogg for being at Evelyn's side until the ambulance and family arrived. To Gerry Espie we can not thank you enough for your patience, your sincere understanding and personal care provided to Bern. Special thanks also to our compassionate ambulance attendants. Dwight Thomas and Gord Riddle, the gentle, respectful nurses and doctors at the Minden Hospital, and Kristen, at Monks Funeral Home, for your kindness and guidance.

Bern must have known, when he and Evelyn settled here 60 years ago, that this was indeed a "top notch" community to raise a family and live their lives.

It is truly a blessing to live in such a supportive community.

Evelyn, Dave & Mary, Donna & Mark, Al & Char, Teresa & Glenn and Families.

DONNA MARIE JENNINGS

Words alone cannot express our deepest gratitude for the love and support our community has shown Donna during her courageous battle over the past two years.

Our heartfelt thanks to everyone for their phone calls, food donations, cards, hugs and support during Donna's battle.

To the doctors and nurses at HHHS – your compassion and dedication truly exemplifies what an asset you are to your profession and our community. A very special thank you to Dr. Tina Stephenson and Lucy for their unbelievable devotion when caring for Donna during her brief hospital stay.

Thank you to Rev. Joan Cavanaugh and Monk's Funeral Home for a beautiful service celebrating Donna's life. Many thanks to those who sent flowers and donations in Donna's memory.

She was larger than life with a heart just as big and our world will never be the same but heaven sure got one incredible angel!
